Talbot County Launches COVID-19 Website

EASTON, MD - Talbot County Emergency Services announced today that it has developed a new website — www.talbotcovid19.org — that will be a central location for community information during the COVID-19 health emergency.

“We continue to utilize our emergency management system to drive a high level of coordination to achieve two important goals,” says Clay Stamp, Director of Emergency Services for Talbot County. “These goals include establishing and maintaining a common operating picture for those working on solving issues in a rapidly changing environment and ensuring we gather and distribute timely and valuable information.”

The website links to federal, state, and local information about the coronavirus and Talbot County’s response. The Talbot County Health Department is the primary source for local health advisories, along with the Maryland Department of Health and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Local community partners, including Talbot County’s municipalities, are participating in regular calls and are submitting local updates for the website. Updates will be posted to the website daily.

“Information is power in a rapidly developing scenario such as this,” says Talbot County Health Officer Dr. Fredia Wadley. “We are sharing information just as we learn more about the virus.”

There is still only one confirmed case in Talbot County. Any individual who is well, should continue working. Individuals who have a fever, cough, shortness of breath, or any other respiratory symptoms, should stay home from work and call their primary care provider for further guidance.

Dr. Wadley says the average age of infection for the COVID-19 virus is 60, and the average age of death from the disease is 80. Stressing social distancing to seniors is paramount to limiting deaths for this disease. People 60 and over or people with chronic medical conditions or weakened immune systems should avoid crowds, stay away from others who are sick, and stay home as much as possible.

“Not everyone will agree with the approaches we are taking, such as closing schools,” Dr. Wadley notes. “But we are doing the best we can with the information we have to slow the spread of this disease. We are making the best decisions we can for our community.”

The response from Talbot County has been extraordinary, says Talbot County Council President Corey Pack. “We tip our hats to the business community and to our non-profit agencies the work they are doing,” he says.

University of Maryland Shore Regional Health

- The University of Maryland Medical System/University of Maryland Baltimore, in coordination with Johns Hopkins Health System, is postponing all elective, non-emergent procedures, beginning Wednesday, March 18, and continuing for a two-week period until April 1, as part of the System's COVID-19 response to managing a potential increase in patient volume. This action is designed to provide additional capacity for UMMS hospitals to treat those patients in greatest need.
- "Consistent with our priority to protect our patients and staff, our decision is guided by the need to minimize the risk of exposing surgical patients to COVID-19, minimize the potential for high-risk exposure to surgical and peri-operative staff from unrecognized and asymptomatic carriers of COVID-19, minimize risk within the hospital environment from potential exposure consistent with social distancing principles, and ensure adequate availability of supplies and equipment that can be redirected to the care of COVID-19 patients," said David Marcozzi, MD, UMMS COVID-19 Incident Commander. "This is a rapidly-changing dynamic and we need to plan ahead. Emergent and urgent procedures as defined by a patient's care team that are necessary for a patient's health and time sensitive will continue."
- This policy will be reassessed weekly for the following two-week period.
